Dear Mr. Day:

In answer to your letter which I received on my return home I am glad to state that Dr. Parks holds a very important position in the Department of Geology and Palaeontology, being an Associate Professor of the latter subject. He has by his ability and constant work earned for himself an enviable reputation in Palaeontology, and as he is still a young man he should have many years before him in which to add greatly to the good results that he has already accomplished. He has excellent organising ability, and has his museum of palaeontology thoroughly well arranged, and has been successful in adding to it by his own efforts and by inducing others to assist him. Recently his work on "The Building Stones in Canada" has attracted attention. It covers an immense field and though I am unable to give a personal opinion what I have heard leads me to believe that it is thoroughly well done. We regard Dr. Parks as a Canadian scientist of high promise.

Yours sincerely,

President.
